

Two Prisoners Confess Attempt To Saw Way Out Of Jail

An attempted jailbreak was nipped last night by Sheriff Jacob Y. Altomose.

He discovered a steel bar partly sawed through and a piece of hacksaw blade in one of the cells.

Two men confessed they were the ones who did the sawing.

They were Cecil Lawler, 26, and Robert Hutchison Jr., 22, both of Phillipsburg, N. J. They are part of the four-man gang accused of more than a dozen burglaries in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, including a number of burglaries and larcenies in Monroe County.

With the exception of a night at Northampton County prison, the pair have been in Monroe County jail since their arrest Feb. 10.

Last night they admitted using the hacksaw blade in an attempt to saw through the inch-and-three-quarter steel bars of the single window in the cellblock corridor at the second floor level.

Working in the last two days, the pair had managed to cut about four-fifths of the way through the bar. To escape through the window they would have had to make another cut to remove a section of the bar, then wedge out or cut through a heavy steel mesh outside the window. But it could have been done, the sheriff said.

Another prisoner at the jail commented drily, "You never would of made it, boys."

The sheriff's keen ear and curiosity were the keys which unlocked the story of the attempted jailbreak.

Sheriff Altomose was walking past the rear of the jail between 1 and 2 p.m. yesterday. He paused and for a moment heard or sensed a noise which "just wasn't quite right." He listened, but the noise wasn't repeated.

After dinner, playing a hunch, the sheriff walked back into the cellblock. He searched the entire block without saying anything to the prisoners watching him.

Still not satisfied, he called in Probation Officer J. Clarence Shafer.

Shafer and Altomose had the prisoners strip. All clothing was gone over carefully. The two officers found nothing. They shifted the prisoners into different cells and once again went over the cellblock.

This time the sawed bar was spotted. It is one of six which protect the window. The place which had been sawed is difficult to see, and is half-concealed by a window frame and an exhaust fan and motor.

The sheriff said he guessed that the cell shared by Hutchison and Lawler would be a good place to check again.

Between the folds of a cloth on a wooden table the sheriff found a piece of steel hacksaw blade about an inch and a half long.

He and Shafer left the cellblock without saying anything.

After several minutes Lawler shouted from his new cell, asking for Sheriff Altomose. "Come on in, Sheriff," he said, "I want to make a confession."

Altomose went in. Lawler said he was "the one who was in it."

From another cell at the rear, Hutchison called out, "I was in it, too, no use locking up the other fellows."

Lawler told the sheriff they had used a full-length hacksaw blade. After the sheriff's first check of the cellblock, they had broken the hacksaw blade in pieces and flushed it down the toilet in the cell, Lawler added.

"Not all of it. You missed this piece," the sheriff said, showing him the evidence.

The two told Altomose they "found" the hacksaw blade behind a soil pipe in the cellblock corridor. But Sheriff Altomose points out that the cellblock is cleaned and swept both diligently and frequently.

The sheriff is continuing his investigation of the attempted jailbreak today.

One of the first steps is to have steel reinforcements put in around the sawed-through spot in the bar. The window seems to be a favorite spot for such efforts. Two heavy steel welded plates mark the spots where two former attempts were made—and also failed.

Ike Denounces "Disregard Of Fair Play"

House Group Votes Cut In Excise Taxes

Washington (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday brushed aside Eisenhower administration opposition and approved almost unanimously a billion dollar annual cut in about 20 excise taxes.

The changes, if finally enacted, would take effect April 1, presumably bringing widespread price reductions on the articles affected.

Committee Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) who sponsored the move, said the tax cuts would spur consumer buying and thus give a boost to the national economy, now in a slight dip.

The Reed bill also would extend indefinitely the present excise or sales taxes on liquor, tobacco, automobiles, gasoline, trucks and buses, and beer and wine. Cuts in these fields, amounting to about $1,000,000,000 a year, are set for April 1 under present laws.

Final action to send the bill to the House floor was delayed until today because of a minor technicality, but the committee approved the measure section by section in voice votes which members said were almost all unanimous.

House leaders said the measure would be brought up for formal House action early next week.

The Reed bill would level off at 10 per cent all excise or sales taxes now above that figure, except for liquor and tobacco.

Cut to the 10 per cent figure would be taxes on phone calls, jewelry, furs, cosmetics, luggage, admissions to movies, sports events and other entertainments, rail, bus and air passenger fares, telegrams, pens, mechanical pencils, sporting goods, lighters and photographic equipment.

Board May Lose Power

Washington (AP) — The House Labor Committee voted yesterday to give federal courts power to hear unfair labor practices cases which now come before the National Labor Relations Board.

The committee split sharply across party lines as it voted 14-13 to take from the board the quasi-judicial powers it has exercised for nearly 20 years. It would be continued only as an administrative body to deal with such matters as union representation including collective bargaining elections.

The board decided about 9,500 election cases last year, its records show.

The action, if finally written into law, would mark another step in trimming NLRB powers which at one time were almost supreme in the labor field.

When it was first established under the Wagner Act, it investigated and prosecuted as well as heard charges of unfair labor practices. Its critics contended it was prosecutor, judge and jury all in one.

The Taft-Hartley Law in 1947 stripped the board of its investigating and prosecuting powers and gave them to a general counsel established as an independent agency.

The board was limited to hearing and deciding the complaints, in addition to deciding union representation.

The committee voted yesterday to substitute federal court hearings for those of the NLRB in the complaint cases. The complainant could prosecute his own case, or could have it presented by the U. S. district attorney.

Six Die In Fire

Kankakee, Ill. (AP) — The bodies of six persons, including a family of five, were found yesterday in the fire blackened ruins of their farm home four miles southeast of Kankakee.

Signal Corps Dedication July 1 To Attract More Than 25,000, Says Mack

Tobyhanna—Official dedication of the Signal Depot here will take place on July 1, members of the Tobyhanna Community Council were told last night by Col. William Mack, commanding officer.

The dedication services will attract an estimated 25,000 to 40,000 persons, Mack said.

The announcement was made during a routine meeting of the council composed of delegates from 12 community organizations—in the depot conference rooms.

At the meeting, council members presented a bill of 23 "problems of mutual interest to both the depot and the community."

Among the problems were traffic lights, deputizing of Signal Depot guards to allow them authority off the post, snow removal on State highways, recreational facilities for depot employees and servicemen, school facilities, walks, parking, train service and vice control, including possible treatment of the problems of gambling and prostitution.

In addition, the bill of problems raised the question of what solution could be found to the inadequacy of the present underpass near the town.

At present, tractor-trailer trucks are unable to use the underpass because it is too low. These vehicles are now using the route through the town.

All meetings of the council will be held on the first Wednesday of each month in the depot conference rooms. Col. Mack said last night he will arrange an orientation lecture for each meeting on some phase of the work within the depot.

Last night's discussion centered on the hiring procedure followed by depot officials.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts Four Puerto Rican Fanatics In Shooting Of Congressmen

Washington (AP) — A federal grand jury acted with near-record speed yesterday in indicting four Puerto Rican fanatics accused of wounding five Congressmen in Monday's bullet-spraying burst of violence in the House of Representatives.

The jury was reported to have voted almost immediately after U. S. Atty. Leo A. Rover completed presenting the government's case in one hour and 45 minutes.

Rover told newsmen the gravity of the crime warranted the speedy action. Only six witnesses testified.

The assailants, including the self-styled ringleader, Mrs. Lolita Lebron, 34, were charged with assault with intent to kill and assault with a dangerous weapon.

Lebron said the defendants will be arraigned Friday. They will be called upon then to enter pleas of innocent or guilty.

Police said three of the alleged gun wielders, including Mrs. Lebron, have confessed, but a fourth, Irving Flores Rodriguez, 28, has refused to talk.

All four defendants, now held in $100,000 bail each, face a possible maximum sentence of 75 years in prison.

Physicians said all the wounded House members were improving. Rep. Alvin M. Bentley (R-Mich.) the most seriously injured, was taken off the critical list, but doctors said there was still danger of complications developing from his internal injuries.

"We are both candidates for governor."

Leader, a 36-year-old York County poultryman, declined comment.

There were reports McClelland and Leader may confer again today but there was no confirmation from either.

Lenten Meditation

What it is that you need today? Deliverance from the tyranny of fear or the release from some selfish passion? It is forgiveness or comfort or guidance on some problem or vitality for your spiritual life?

Has the flush of reality gone out of your religion? Then push your way through the crowd and make the great discovery of God's love as found in Christ Jesus. Do it today! Now! Tomorrow He may be gone.

We are now at the season of Lent. It is time to take our problems to Christ. It is time to get rid of our pride, to soften our hearts, to get to God in a hurry. It is time for each to say "I have sinned."

Another Lent is here and Love is knocking at the door of our heart. A Love that permitted itself to be crucified for our redemption. A Love that is deeper than our sin. A Love that will not let us

Borough May Lease VFW's Parking Lot

Investigation of the feasibility of leasing the Veterans of Foreign Wars carnival grounds property as an "off-street" parking area, and the cost studies of traffic expert services were authorized last night by Stroudsburg Council.

Council also set up plans for a special meeting to deal with both traffic and parking problems.

The action came after a group from the Stroudsburg Traffic & Parking Advisory Committee filed with council recommendations resulting from a recent meeting in Wyckoff's tearoom.

Jack Kerlin, Max Stadfeld and M. E. Leffler made up the visiting committee.

Mr. Kerlin noted that the advisory group is aware that council has both traffic and parking studies, but appealed for some emergency action to meet the onrush of summer travel. He passed on the advisory group's proposal that a traffic expert be obtained to make a speedy study and recommendations.

Mr. Stadfeld brought to council's attention an agreement offered to Stroudsburg merchants a year ago by VFW for use of their South Stroudsburg carnival grounds. He said he and the advisory group believe people who want to shop more than two hours and store employees will use the lot for a nominal fee charged by council.

The lease proposal which merchants obtained from VFW was left with council.

Council authorized Engineer Edward C. Hess to make an immediate study of costs involved in preparation of facilities for the proposed parking site. They also authorized Attorney George T. Robinson to discuss details of a lease arrangement with VFW.

Secretary Harold Snyder was directed to make immediate inquiry on traffic and parking experts and the costs involved.

Once these facts are assembled council will hold a special meeting devoted exclusively to traffic.

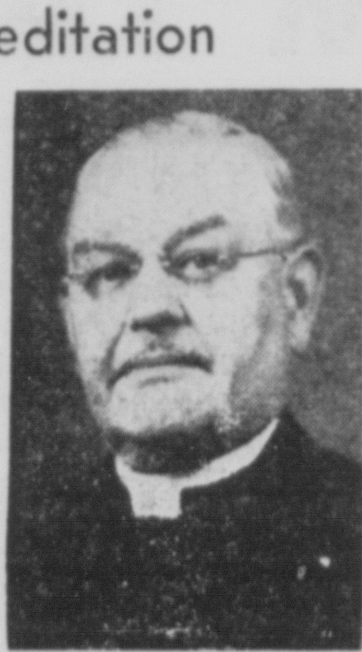

A report from Ed Rahn of Matt Kline electrical contractor that the Ninth and Main St. traffic signal light is in dangerous condition prompted council to order a new signal with yellow caution light between the red and green.

Control box now handling the Ann and Seventh St. light will then be synchronized with the Seventh and Main St. light and operated off the Seventh and Main control box. This was also a suggestion from Mr. Kerlin.

Two Remain Candidates For Governor

Pittsburgh (AP) — Dr. William D. McClelland, Allegheny County coroner seeking the Democratic nomination for governor, last night refused to bow out of the race.

McClelland emerged from a one hour and 45-minute closed conference with State Sen. George M. Leader, the organization-endorsed candidate, and said:

go. What a Guest to visit our hearts!

Will you permit Him to enter? He is ready and seeks to have us with Him for the next 40 days, so that we may have our hearts quickened. Another Lent points to the Cross and says to us:

"This is how God loves."

Tree Falls Across Wire, Cuts Power

A tree fell across utility lines feeding the Bartonville-Tannersville section at 6:30 p.m. yesterday. Several dozen homes were without lights due to the accident.

Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. crews were notified of the mishap at 6:30 p.m., officials said. A work crew was dispatched to the scene immediately.

By 9 p.m. electric service had been restored to most subscribers in the Bartonville area, it was reported. Full restoration of power service was completed about midnight, the company's substation in Stroudsburg said.

According to utility company workers the falling tree tore two face lines and a neutral line down. The tree was located near Tannersville to the rear of property owned by George Newhart.

Heavy rains and strong winds in the area were blamed for felling the tree, area residents said last night.

Snow Blankets Sections Of Pennsylvania

Winter snows struck parts of Pennsylvania yesterday, and in the rest of the Keystone State there was rain.

Heaviest hit was State College where the Weather Bureau reported a seven-inch snowfall. At Phillipsburg there was a five-inch blanket, and about four inches in the Hazleton area.

An Army helicopter made a forced landing on a farm at Rush, Susquehanna County, because of the snowstorm. No one was hurt.

The Weather Bureau said nearly an inch of rain fell in central and eastern Pennsylvania, and rivers in the sections inches nearer the flood stage, particularly the Susquehanna around Lock Haven and Williamsport.

Strong winds buffeted Western Pennsylvania with gusts up to 72 miles an hour reported in the Pittsburgh area. A late afternoon squall snarled traffic in the Steel City and outlying suburbs. A mixture of snow and rain fell in Scranton and surrounding areas.

Hobbies Not Tax Deductible, Not Even For Skunks

Newark, N.J. (AP) — Bill Bailey tried to get an income tax deduction for his pet skunk yesterday but the federal Revenue Bureau here turned up its nose at the idea.

Bailey brought the skunk with him as exhibit "A" in his case. The bureau's cashier, Mrs. Carolyn Aduvato, was about to go elsewhere when Bailey assured her the skunk had been deodorized.

But it was all to no avail. The bureau would not allow one scent in deductions, ruling that expenses of a hobby are non-deductible.

Eight Wable Jurors Chosen

Greensburg (AP) — The panel of jurors called for the trial of John Wesley Wable, accused of slaying truckers on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, was exhausted yesterday with only eight selected for duty. The court immediately ordered 50 citizens summoned for jury duty.

Judge Edward G. Bauer directed Sheriff Howard Thomas to summon the citizens at random from various parts of Westmoreland County.

SLUSH, and more slush piled up on Monroe County highways at high elevation points in Blakeslee and Tobyhanna yesterday, sending trucks like this one into action to clear the decks for travel. Snow reached two inches at 1 p. m., then turned slushy in the wake of heavy rain. (Daily Record Photo)

Two-Inch Snowfall Covers Mountain Regions Of County

Mount Pocono—Two inches of snow blanketed the northern end of Monroe County yesterday, sending 12 Highway Department vehicles and 29 men into action shortly before noon.

Temperature dropped to 30 degrees here as the snow began falling. By mid-afternoon warm, heavy rains turned the mounting snowbanks into slush and caused highways to become slippery.

Two graders and two trucks equipped with plows were used during the period to clear the main arteries. Seven trucks spread cinders across mountainous sections, especially in the Effort-Blakeslee region.

The Stroudsburg area experienced no snow at all, but chilly rain, whipped by strong winds, fell during the afternoon.

The weather cleared in the southern Monroe region before sundown.

The rainfall in Stroudsburg totaled 92-hundredths of an inch, said weatherman Pierre Lake. The 8 a. m. temperature was 34 degrees; the day's high was 45 degrees; and the 8 p. m. temperature was down to 27 degrees.

It was mostly rain in Wilkes-Barre itself but snow, up to four inches, fell in the mountains surrounding the Wyoming Valley. The snow blanketed two main highways into Wilkes-Barre through the mountains. Many cars were reported stalled.

Chicago Area Buried Under Foot Of Snow

By The Associated Press

A traffic crippling blizzard which blanketed Chicago and parts of the midwest with up to 12 inches of snow in 12 hours moved into Central Michigan late yesterday.

Road conditions and communications, disrupted in the snow belt for a time, gradually returned to near normal.

The area covered by the storm was about 150 miles wide and 450 miles long. It reached from west of St. Louis in a northeasterly direction into Michigan.

The Chicago Weather Bureau predicted temperatures would drop during the night, accompanied by scattered snow flurries. Central and Southern Michigan probably will get up to 10 inches of snow.

A near-blizzard lashed Western New York last night on the heels of westerly gales off Lake Erie, flooding lakeside homes and highways around Buffalo.

A dozen families were driven from their homes when the lake swept over embankments at Woodlawn Beach.

Ousted Employees Held Bad Risks, Not Subversives

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower said yesterday the persons removed from the federal payroll under his security program were bad risks and that's all — he never had called them subversives.

Eisenhower suggested it might be worthwhile to explore the idea, advanced by a reporter, of calling people "unsuitable" rather than "security risks" in cases where no disloyalty is involved.

Democrats have been complaining that Republicans translated security risk to mean treason and attempted to convince the people that some 2,000 disloyal Americans were left behind in government jobs by Democratic administrations.

Rebels Reach City

Hanoi, Indochina (AP) — The French disclosed yesterday that Vietminh troops had penetrated the suburbs of Nam Dinh, a large textile city 55 miles southeast of Hanoi, in stepped up rebel activity in the vital Red River Delta.

Praises Army, Takes Issue With McCarthy

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower spoke out against "disregard for fair play" yesterday in words aimed unmistakably at Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.).

And in upholding the military services as "completely loyal," Eisenhower paid specific tribute to Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, the bemedalled war hero McCarthy accused of being unfit to command.

The President had his say in a formal news conference statement. McCarthy bounced back one of his own an hour later.

"If a stupid, arrogant or witless man in a position of power appears before our committee and is found adding the Communist party," the senator said, "he will be exposed. The fact that he might be a general places him in no special class so far as I am concerned."

It was another round in the ruckus that exploded within the Republican party 11 days ago when Secretary of the Army Stevens challenged McCarthy's treatment of Zwicker as humiliating and abusive.

The senator had questioned the general's loyalty about the promotion and honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, an Army dentist. McCarthy said Peress should be court-martialed for refusing to say whether he had Communist connections. Zwicker said he merely was carrying out orders from superiors in granting Peress an honorable discharge.

After McCarthy told Zwicker he wasn't fit to command, Stevens picked up the cudgel and the battle was on. And at his first news conference since it began, Eisenhower was ready with an 800-word prepared statement.

In it, the President conceded, as Stevens had done before, that "the Department of the Army made serious errors in handling the Peress case." Procedures are being corrected, Eisenhower said, to avoid such mistakes in the future.

But he also said the officials in the executive branch "will have my unqualified support" in insisting that "employees appearing before any executive or congressional investigation 'be treated fairly.'"

"In opposing Communism," the President said, "we are defeating ourselves if either by design or through carelessness, we use methods that do not conform to the American sense of justice and fair play."

Pope Receives Ashes In Bed

Vatican City (AP) — Like millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world, Pope Pius XII yesterday began the penitential season of Lent by receiving ashes.

The ailing, 78-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church received the ashes in bed. An attendant marked a cross on the Pope's forehead with the ashes and, in Latin, intoned the ancient reminder: "Remember man that thou art dust and unto dust thou shalt return."

No official bulletin on the Pope's condition was released yesterday. But Vatican sources said his slow improvement from a stubborn abdominal ailment continues.

Senate Approves Farm Prop Funds

Washington (AP) — The Senate approved yesterday an extra 1½ billion dollars for farm price supports this year.

At the same time the chamber voted to change the accounting system on price support operations so that "every one can tell just how much any program in cotton, butter or any other crop is costing."

Water Runoff System Should Be Adequate

ON THE LEVEL
By A. Norman Dietrick
SCS Technician

The foundation upon which to build a complete soil and water conservation program on the farm should be an adequate water disposal system. The system should be designed to handle safely the so-called cloudburst or gully washer. It is the heavy showers which do the most damage.

After all possible measures have been taken to increase the water holding capacity of the soil, there is still a certain amount which will run off.

A system of eropland terraces or diversion terraces are often necessary to carry this excess water to a safe outlet without exposing the land to the danger of erosion.

Wet areas may often be drained through the use of drainage type terraces. Sometimes tile drainage may be indicated as part of the water disposal system.

In all cases a safe outlet must be provided for the system. Usually a wooded area or a natural watercourse which is well vegetated may be used.

Sometimes it becomes necessary to construct an outlet which is seeded to become a sod-water way. In extreme cases it may be desirable to resort to masonry or paving to prevent erosion at the outlet.

A water disposal system has been designed and staked out on the Harry Gruver farm near Gilbert, Pa. Three diversion terraces and a constructed outlet which will be seeded will be used.

Electronic Weather Sign Flashes Road Conditions

By A. VERNON DAVIS
Central Press Correspondent

Harrisburg, Pa. — Something new in highway safety is being tried out on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the 327-mile superhighway which runs across the state of Pennsylvania from east to west.

It's a "weather sensing" sign which tells the motorist what the weather conditions are on the stretch of highway just ahead of him. The conditions are spelled out on an electric sign. The eight by eleven-foot sign can handle five messages: fog, roadway wet, snow, clear roadway and roadway freezing.

The experimental setup is completely automatic, thanks to late electronic developments. Automatic operation is achieved by a master sensing device which controls the word formation appearing on the roadside sign.

Three electronic elements team up to keep the Twentieth Century driver advised of weather conditions ahead of him. Fog is detected by an electric eye—a photo electric cell.

Precipitation is detected by a second device, adjusted to light up the "roadway wet" words when proper to do so.

A third sensing element translates the temperature into the proper impulse in conjunction with the other two elements. This element determines when the words should be lighted up for "roadway freezing" or "snow."

The experimental device has been installed along the Philadelphia extension of the Turnpike for east-bound traffic, a few miles east of the Bowmanville service station.

Thomas J. Evans, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission, says other equipment will be installed if the experiments now underway are successful.

In fact, if the tests work out it is possible the electronic equipment will not only help the motoring public, but also the maintenance crews along the superhighway. The weather detecting signals from the master equipment do not have to be restricted to any one display sign. And it is possible, by radio, to flash word of road conditions by highway sections to the sectional maintenance buildings, thus alerting workmen to road conditions in their areas.

State Adds 15 Policemen To Pike Patrol

Harrisburg, Pa. — An additional 25 state policemen have been assigned to patrol duty on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, state police headquarters announced yesterday.

Working on the toll road now are 115, Col. C. M. Wilhelm, state police commissioner, said.

Assignment of the extra policemen was made after a conference between Gov. John S. Fine and T. J. Evans, chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

An increase in the number of officers patrolling the turnpike was urged last year after a legislative investigation of the toll road's safety record.

Turnpike fatalities were decreased by two during the first two months of 1954, compared with the same period last year. Fourteen were killed while 16 fatalities were recorded during January and February of 1953.

19-Year History Of S. S. Kresge FFA Chapter Reviewed By Polk High School Instructor

Kresgeville—The 19-year history of S. S. Kresge Chapter, Future Farmers of America was related to members here this week by Clifford Stroud, vocational agricultural instructor at Polk Township High School.

According to the review, the chapter was organized in 1935 by Roy Decker, first agricultural teacher in Monroe County schools. He currently is an instructor in Centre County.

Named after Sebastian S. Kresge, founder of the nationwide chain stores whose home was located near here, the chapter operated for 10 years, until 1945, under the tutelage of Harold Davis, now with the State Rehabilitation Department serving Wayne and Lackawanna Counties.

Elmer Veety, now agricultural teacher in Stroudsburg, was head of the department here from 1945 to 1947, and then Frank Varney assumed the post for two years until his election as head of the Chestnut Hill Township vocational department.

Stroud reported here July, 1949, and has been instructing from 25 to 42 boys each year.

Since its inception there have been over 200 members in the local chapter, the report continues. Eleven members have been acclaimed Keystone Farmers. They are Luther Getz, William Baumgartner Jr., Harvey Smith, Charles Coslar, Robert Gregory, Wesley Kuhenbecker, Harold Kreger, Charles Kuhenbecker, Paul Kuchner, Alton Kleintop and Frank Smith.

Baumgartner, Gregory and Harvey Smith are now teaching vocational agriculture. Honorary members of the chapter include Harry Young, Wilmer Frisbie, Leon Keller, August Kuhenbecker and John Smith.

In addition to the Keystone Farmer laurels, members also have taken several district awards.

The chapter has planted several thousand evergreen seedlings for parents of members; pruned apple trees on members' farms; raised and sold both grown vegetable plants and seeds; sold farm machinery and trailers; raised swine as a chapter project; erected school playground equipment and repaired and helped maintain the athletic field.

Two members, Raymond Hawk and Martin Kreechel, went to State College in July for a course in conservation sponsored by the Indian Mountain Rod and Gun Club.

The chapter reportedly is the only group in the county to elect a "Chapter Sweetheart." The honor went to Shirley Griffith.

Officers are Roger H. Christman, president; Sherwood Smith, vice president; Ernest Kleintop, secretary; Neal Murphy, treasurer; William Petkus, reporter; Kenneth Hawk, sentinel, and Stroud, adviser.

March -- Ouch!

From a source usually regarded as reliable we gather that Romans went around muttering "Beware the Ides of March."

One of their boys, J. Caesar by name, didn't beware and got a knife in the back. And there must have been other mishaps to give the Ides such a bad name.

We don't know about the Ides, but March doesn't have too good a reputation around here either. It's windy, and it's deceitful. It keeps holding out promises of spring, then plunging us back into winter.

No wonder the March hare is mad.

And all Americans face the music on their income taxes in March.

All in all, it's a month that many of us would gladly do without, going directly from the snows of February to the showers of April.

To sum up--ugh.

Hard Liquor, Soft Control

One thing that hasn't increased in price in the years of inflation is the cost of violating Pennsylvania's Liquor Control Law. If anything, it's a lot cheaper now.

The State Liquor Control Board handles this piece of public business. It's the duty of the board to swat the offender when a licensee violates the law.

The board can revoke or suspend a license. Mostly it does the latter, even in cases where the saloon-keeper has been up before on similar charges. Not only that, but the board is authorized to accept an "offer in compromise" which amounts to a fine, instead of suspending the license.

This "offer in compromise" was $10 a day when it was authorized many years ago. It's still $10 a day--the price hasn't gone up. The saloon-keeper faced with a 10-day suspension simply gets the board to accept $100 instead, and goes on operating.

The Liquor Board's soft-handed enforcement policies have become legendary. Accordingly, a check is made from time to time by Pennsylvania Alcoholic Beverages Study, Inc., a non-profit group which does valuable work in support of the liquor control system.

This year's report shows the board passing out the usual light penalties and accepting the legalized pay-offs in nearly 90 per cent of the suspension cases, with few revocations.

"The Board's present policies of shortening suspensions and accepting an offer on compromise in practically every case are bound to breed more and more violations of the liquor law," the study group reported. Then they put this question to the board:

"Why should the small minority of disreputable liquor licensees hesitate to violate the law, when all they need is a short suspension which can be compromised at a price of $10 for each day of suspension?"

Pennsylvania Alcoholic Beverage Study, Inc., is financed by a group of sincere citizens who don't want to see anything like prohibition come back and who feel that the best way to keep it away is to make liquor control work.

Most citizens will agree heartily with this objective. It is for this reason that Pennsylvania passed what was accounted as a model liquor control law. We should hate to see that law undermined by a soft enforcement policy, as it well may be.

Few people are going to shed any tears if the Liquor Board wipes out some of the low-life places it licenses. We've had liquor control for more than 20 years; it's time to increase its effectiveness.

The Once Over

Whoosis Sent Me!

We are thinking of buying an automobile, maybe new and maybe used. But we don't know whose name to mention. Groucho Marx says, "Tell 'em I'm in Groucho's sent you." Berle urges us to say "Uncle Miltie sent us." Ed Sullivan says, "When you go, mention my name." And last night Guy Lombardo, boosting a car on his TV show, joined the growing company with a firm, "Tell 'em Lombardo sent you."

We get mixed up easily and have a deadly fear we will mention the wrong entertainer as responsible for our hasty expenditures in the motor world. We are unnerved by a recurrent thought that we might go to the salesman or used-car lot to which Groucho sends his people and say that Lombardo, Berle or Sullivan sent us.

These are highly competitive days in the auto trade and no salesman is going to lose a customer on a technicality. We wouldn't feel right if we had mistakenly taken Guy Lombardo's advice in a Groucho Marx saloon and were seen by Guy driving the wrong car. Or vice versa. As a matter of fact, we have been through some embarrassing experiences through our TV and Car Lot journeys already.

"Groucho sent me," we said in a used-car lot the other day.

"What Groucho is that?" the man asked.

We could see he was uninformed and so we tried another lot.

"Milton Berle sends me," we said.

"He don't send me," sneered the salesman. "But his secretary, Max, is terrific."

"I'm a prospective customer," we said, anxious to get on with the deal.

"You want the video shop. Two blocks down, take your first left," he said.

Life found us next in a big motor showroom, groggy but determined. "Lopez," we said briefly.

"We got nobody by that name here unless he is in the service department," was the answer.

"Look," we pleaded. "Anybody can make mistakes. It could be Sullivan."

"My name is O'Hara," he said, indicating that we were both in a bad state of confusion now. We were about to flee in search of a car to whom nobody had sent us, but saw a very smart model at $999.95 and decided to be persistent.

"Nice car," we said. "Know who sent me?"

"No," said the salesman.

"Howdy Doody," we said.

"Who?" demanded the salesman.

"Alistair Cooke, the O'Brien Sisters, Art Carney, Gabby Hayes, Fred Allen, Martha Raye, the Chicago Zoo, four cooking programs, Art Linkletter and Life Begins at 80," we said. "I also have introductory letters to auto agencies from Rumpus Room, Eva Gabor, Dragnet, Suspense and Jimmy Durante."

"You got sent here?" exclaimed the salesman suddenly.

"Sure," we said.

"WHY DIDN'T YOU SAY SO?" he snapped.

Can't make up my mind which is the harder to understand, the Azuma Kabuki Japanese dancers, "The Confidential Clerk," or Vic Raschi's release. . . . Helen Traubel of Grand Opera fame is performing in a New York nightclub, mixing Aida, with the St. Louis Blues, etc. . . . Remember away back when you had to go to the opera to hear an opera star? . . . Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca have parted, each to do a personal TV show and we feel sorry, as they made a pretty nice comedy pair. . . . To our mind Caesar is one of the most versatile comics in show biz, and Imogene has even a wider range of talent. . . . The gal is a cross between Bea Lillie and Fanny Brice. . . . In a way the breakup reflects again the terrific handicap of having to do three or four new sketches every week. . . . Until radio and TV came along, a comedy team could hit on one good act and play it for years. . . . There were top comedians who played the same sketch all their lives. . . . In TV completely new ones are required every week, and some pretty poor ones creep in.

Robert S. Allen Reports

McCarthy Holds Dynamite Diary On Income Taxes

Washington — There was a secret reason for that surprise decision of the Senate Republican Policy Committee to consider changing the rules on investigating procedures.

This secret reason directly involves Senator Joe McCarthy, but not his stormy clash with Army Secretary Robert Stevens.

What was really behind the GOP leaders' unusual move is alarm over inside information that McCarthy has gotten his hands on a dynamite-loaded document that involves many members of Congress.

This explosive document is the thousand-page diary of Charles Oliphant, former general counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

He and other Bureau and Justice Department officials made headlines last year during an investigation by a House subcommittee headed by Representative Robert Kean (R., N. J.). Oliphant's diary figured prominently in this tax probe.

The document consists of detailed accounts of all his important telephone conversations and conferences while in the IRS. Most of them deal with tax cases, some involving criminal charges, in which senators, representatives and hundreds of other officials evinced personal interest of varying degrees.

The list of these headline names is bi-partisan. They include high congressional leaders of both parties.

Previously, only two copies of the Oliphant diary were known to exist: one in the files of the House Ways and Means Committee, of which Representative Kean's investigating group was a subcommittee, and the other in the Justice Department, which got it from the probes for prosecuting purposes. The diary has never been made public.

During the House investigation, only extracts directly relating to the cases and persons under consideration were read into the record. Nothing else was released.

How McCarthy procured this political A-bomb is conjectural. Senate Policy Committee members understand he has a "photograph" copy. However, the "Whooisnits" got it, there is no doubt about one thing: He intends to make the most of the diary -- if he can!

He has already been working quietly on that for more than a month.

Late in January, McCarthy obtained access to government tax records. Under the law, only the President can open these files for such scrutiny. McCarthy sent word to the White House that he wanted to investigate certain tax cases and was authorized to examine Revenue Bureau records.

Since then, members of his staff, using the Oliphant diary as a reference, have been poring through IRS files compiling voluminous tax dossiers for McCarthy.

That's the inside information that reached the GOP Policy Committee.

And that is why the Republican leaders decided the time had arrived to take a critical look at the rules regulating investigating committees. At least two Policy Committee members are named in the Oliphant diary, as well as numerous other senators and former senators -- and representatives.

Note: McCarthy is personally making certain that copies of his two books, "The Story of General George Marshall" and "McCarthyism," are in the library of every Army, Navy and Air Force installation in the country. He has sent a franked letter to each of them stating, "I am sending you under separate cover two recent books which I have written for use in your library." The Marshall volume is a violent attack on the former military leader, Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense.

The Mailman Kings -- Representative Martin Dies (D., Tex.), one-time chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, is compiling quite a collection of famous-name letters on his bill to outlaw the Communist party.

One of the Texan's letters is from President Eisenhower. He was among the first to answer the several hundred letters Dies sent out to top leaders of both parties asking their views on his bill. He wrote that he considered making the Communist party illegal a bi-partisan issue and asked for support from both Republicans and Democrats on his measure.

President Eisenhower replied, "Attorney General Herbert Brownell will make a report on your bill at the appropriate time."

Dies feels this indicates the Administration will back his proposal.

The Texan is still awaiting answers from Senators Joe McCarthy and William Jenner, head of the Internal Security Committee. Neither of these prominent anti-Red probes have replied to Dies' request on their views on making membership in the Communist party illegal.

From Their Mouths -- Interior Secretary Douglas McKay, at a private conference with the House Appropriations Committee, asked for a $1,000,000 increase in the national parks budget, explained, "The President called me about some crusading articles that had aroused public opinion on this budget and I went over and talked to him. I told the President, 'I don't think we've done too bad. I would like to have more money for parks, but I just don't think it is in the cards at the moment.' I told him I thought the thing to do was to have your Committee take a look at this matter and see what you think should be done. But the President replied that he thought there ought to be more money for national parks, so we agreed to ask for another $1,000,000."

George Sokolsky Says...

It Was Never Intended That Constitution Should Always Remain A Static Document

It was never intended that the Constitution of the United States should be a static document, hopelessly rigid against the future.

When the Constitution was adopted, the United States consisted of 13 former British colonies on the Eastern seaboard, today it is the basic law of 48 states from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to Mexico.

When the Constitution was adopted, the population of the United States was about 3,000,000 persons; today, the population has grown to 160,000,000. It would be belaboring a point to compare the numerous contrasts between 1789 and 1954, not the least of which is our deep involvement in the affairs of Europe and Asia.

Thomas Jefferson, who always feared the power of the government, wrote:

"... It would reduce the whole instrument to a single phrase -- that of instituting a Congress with power to do whatever would be for the good of the United States; and, as they would be the sole judges of the good or evil, it would also be a power to do whatever evil they pleased."

In Washington's Farewell Address this appears:

"It is important, likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism."

Then George Washington said: "... If in the opinion of the people the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the Constitution designates..."

In a word, the Constitution must ever be a living document, adjusted by judicial interpretation or amended in conformity to the will of the people. The reactionaries who now insist that nothing should be done about the Constitution either overlook, or desire the people to disregard, the provision within the Constitution itself for amendment.

"The Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all Intents and Purposes, as Part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other Mode of Ratification may be proposed by the Congress..."

One is often startled at the extremist statements on this subject by those who have opposed the Bricker Amendment or any substitute for it. Let us disregard altogether the virtues, if any, of the proposed amendments, but we cannot ignore some of the arguments employed against them.

Edwin N. Griswold, Dean of the Harvard Law School, gives a more reactionary reason for opposition to these amendments. He says:

"... The national safeguards against mistakes in foreign policy should remain where they were placed in 1789."

Why was not everything left where it was in 1789, but everything? Maybe Dean Griswold is right. It would have been better that way. But the world does move.

ed all the women he met (and, according to the book, he met thousands of them) that they simply couldn't resist him.

Since I am somewhat of a runt myself (5 feet 6 in. in stocking feet), I wanted to see just what his charm WAS and how a man of his stature could have been so irresistible to the ladies. And since I am a little too old now to charm thousands of women, I (and my wife) thought it would be perfectly safe for me to take a charm course at this stage of the game.

Well, it seems that this fellow Gasparilla and his crew captured hundreds of ships that were plying the Gulf of Mexico out of New Orleans, Mobile, Tampa and other ports and stole the women and the cargo, sank the ships, murdered the crews and raised general heck. They finally had so much loot and so many women that they had to establish warehouses for both.

They took the goods to nearby Boca Grande Island and the women to Captiva, where a good time was had by him and all his crew.

But one day, according to the story, Gasparilla took a large Spanish ship which carried, among other things, a Royal princess, Josefa, daughter of the Viceroy to Mexico, and, although she was only 18, he fell violently in love with her.

She had a retinue of 11 Mexican girls whom he gave to his crew. But he took the Princess to Boca Grande, a neighboring island, where he had built a beautiful house, and treated her royally.

But every time he tried to make love to her she spit in his eye. So, finally, Gasparilla got mad, drew his sword and "in a vile fit of temper nearly beheaded the Princess with one mighty blow."

Which goes to show that, to have REAL success with the ladies, it can be a question of who loses whose head.

Weird News Room Calls Commonplace

—by James B. Gaffney

So you think you've got troubles. You should get behind the receiver at 320, News Room sometime. Take yesterday for instance.

Our day-side reporter admits openly he's not alert until 2 p.m., and then it's questionable. But while in a semi-daze in the a.m. he gets many phone tips: some routine, some hot, some strictly from hunger and others, well...

The phone rings and a voice at the other end says "You a reporter? Well now don't horse me around till I've finished."

It's a long distance call and "the voice" wants you to know it. "You don't think I'd be calling long distance if I was screwy do you?" No comment from 320.

"Look mister," our informant continues, "I've got a real invention here, but nobody will listen to me. I can come into your house, plug in one of my special electric tubes then go out to Chicago and over television send 10,000 smells over the air."

This statement awakens the reporter, well almost. He's waiting for some foul stench to come drifting into the news room across the phone wires. Nothing happens and our long distance friend continues.

"That is only a drop in the bucket compared to the other thing my invention will do. Why I have developed an idea that will cut the legs off five million people at one time, over television. It'll come in handy for civil defense, in case we're ever attacked. I can even administer ether over television and put millions of people asleep at one time."

By this time the rocks in the reporter's head are really rolling. "You talk this over with your boss when he comes in. Then call me at this number. I don't want my wife to know about this. The number I'm giving you is a beer joint."

Then comes the operator "Your time is up sir."

And you think you have troubles.

Vignette: We were chatting with Gene Tunney, who won Jack Dempsey's heavy-weight championship (in the long ago when along came Dempsey!)

They chatted while a crowd gathered in the hotel lobby. Dempsey then told us we "looked great." We told Dempsey we never felt better and whom did he want killed?

"Well," giggled the Champ (pointing to the Champ), "how about starting on him?"

Sen. McCarthy broke up when a chum told him this one. A State Dept. official died and was met at the Gates of St. Peter. As they walked along a corridor, the Dept. of Stater slipped and fell down a chute into a lake of shells.

Rising to the surface, the poor man saw his old boss Dean Acheson also up to his neck in it.

"Isn't this awful?" groaned the newcomer.

"This is nothing," Acheson almost wept. "Just wait. Every hour on the hour Joe McCarthy comes by in a speed boat!"

Rev. Ernest T. Campbell Resigns Pastorate Here

Rev. Ernest T. Campbell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg since 1949, went before the session of the local church last night to request permission to accept the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church in York, Pa.

In his meeting with the session, Mr. Campbell said that he made the request with deep reluctance. His relationship with the Stroudsburg church has been a happy one from the start, he said.

Rev. Campbell came to Stroudsburg after having served the Presbyterian Churches of Portland and Mount Bethel from 1945 to 1949.

He will remain in Stroudsburg through Easter Sunday, it was announced after the session meeting. A congregational meeting is being scheduled for Wednesday night, March 17.

Mr. Campbell took his undergraduate work at New York University and Bob Jones University. He received his B. A. from the latter university in 1945.

In 1948 he received the Bachelor of Divinity Degree from Princeton Theological Seminary, and in 1952 received the Master of Theology degree from the same school.

During his pastorate in the Stroudsburgs, he has entered into almost every phase of community life. He has been in great demand as a speaker before clubs and at community drive dinners. He has broadcast every Thursday morning over WVPO on a 15-minute program "A Treasury of Christian Devotion."

During his ministry here, he has also been called upon to speak at community breaching missions in Toronto, Canada; in Chester Pa.; at Ranchmen's Roundup in Colorado; in Pueblo City, and other sections of the country.

Barrett—A scheduled interruption in power will force the Barrett Township School to dismiss classes at 12:30 p. m. today, Principal Andrew Lewis said last night.

Lewis said the interruption is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p. m. and continue approximately four hours.

Should weather conditions interfere with the power company accomplishing its planned work, the service will be interrupted at the same time Friday and the school

Van Zandt Calls For Protection Of Congressmen

Washington (AP)—Rep. James Van Zandt (R-Pa.) has urged that Congress take steps to provide better protective measures to prevent a repetition of the shooting in House of Representatives.

Van Zandt estimated that it was "two or three minutes at least until the uniformed police arrived."

"A situation like that is a mistake," he said "in this day and age and in these times of world disturbance I think we should have trained police in charge of the visitors' galleries, who would be able to act immediately in an emergency and hold the fort until help arrived."

Van Zandt was on the House floor Monday when Puerto Rican terrorists shot five congressmen. He sped to the gallery and helped guards to seize and disarm the assailants.

Man Indicted For Courtroom Killing

Warren (AP)—Norman Moon, 26-year-old construction worker of Connellsville, Pa., was indicted yesterday for the courtroom slaying of Judge Allison D. Wade. The jurist was shot to death on Jan. 13 while questioning Moon for non-support of his wife.

The trial may be held in the same courtroom in which the judge was killed. In asking the court to set May 10 as the trial date, defense attorneys did not ask for a change of venue. The late jurist's successor, Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., agreed to the trial date.

will be dismissed at 12:30 that day instead of today.

In case school is not to be dismissed early today, an announcement to this effect will be broadcast over station WVPO at 11 a. m., Lewis said.

Lunch will be served in the school cafeteria at the regular time today and Friday regardless of any change in dismissal time.

Borough To Treat Holland Thread Sewage

Council Votes Acceptance Of Factory Waste

Industrial waste sewage from Holland Thread Co. was formally accepted by Stroudsburg Council last night on the basis of a recommendation from Albright & Friel.

The action paves the way for elimination of disposal of these wastes in drainage lagoons near the plant, source of years of complaints.

Complaint has been against alleged odors and insects flowing from the drainage lagoons.

Attorney George T. Robinson was authorized to draw up an agreement between the borough and Holland Thread promptly to expedite acceptance of the wastes for treatment in the Stroudsburg plant.

Holland Thread will be charged $837 a year for all waste up to 160,000 gallons with a charge of 43 cents a gallon for all wastes over the 160,000. This rate was also recommended by Albright & Friel.

Approval was given to binder insurance coverage on the sewer treatment works until such time as a valuation for insurance purposes is submitted by engineers.

Bids for a new police car opened last night resulted in the sale being awarded to Tucker Chevrolet at $550 and the old police car. New car will be a four-door sedan.

Secretary was authorized to advertise for bids on improvements to the municipal building heating system, part of an expensive overhaul of the system.

Les Drake of McConnell's Taxi Service was granted permission to put two taxi parking stands on the southwest corner of Main St. and Eighth St. One stand will be eliminated near Wyckoff's and another at Colonial diner.

Budget was adopted as previously outlined. Tax rates are the same—17½ mills and $5 per capita. Cash and receipts are estimated at $156,754.21 and expenditures at $155,777.

Three Youths Charged With Knocking Down More Than 20 Signs Along Highway

Three young men were apprehended yesterday and charged with knocking down some two dozen signs between Marshalls Creek and Bushkill.

Arrested were Howard Van Why, 21, East Stroudsburg RD 1, and Charles Schoupe, 19, who said he lives at 356 Chestnut St., East Stroudsburg. A 16-year-old East Stroudsburg boy also was taken into custody.

Pfc. Joseph Murphy of the Stroudsburg barracks said the signs were knocked down in a single day—Feb. 25. Damages have been estimated at $288. The signs ranged along Route 209 and most of the adjacent side-roads.

Police said the trio, with equal abandon, knocked down billboards, advertising signs, road directional markers, and many "artistic" signs set up by the Eastern Poconos Association.

The three were taken before Justice of the Peace William N. Walton in Stroudsburg; the older boys were freed on $200 cash bail each, and the youngest was released in custody of his parents.

The warrants, charging malicious mischief, were obtained by William Altier, president of the Eastern Poconos Association, and were served by Trooper Murphy. Altier is listed as prosecutor, police said.

Date for the preliminary hearing has not yet been set.

Shoplifting Is Felony, Warns D.A.

By Elmer D. Christine
District Attorney

The current wave of "shoplifting" in the stores of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg has been called to my attention and I have been asked to comment on it.

"Shoplifting" is a popular term commonly used to describe the crime of larceny. Larceny in Pennsylvania is a felony and, therefore, one of the more serious criminal offenses.

Section 897 of the Penal Code of Pennsylvania provides: "Larceny. Whoever commits larceny, is guilty of felony, and shall upon conviction thereof, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding two thousand dollars ($2,000), or to undergo imprisonment, by separate or solitary confinement at labor, not exceeding five (5) years, or both."

Obviously, then, the Legislature of Pennsylvania has recognized the seriousness of the offense and has incorporated in its code an adequate punishment; a punishment, in fact, which should promptly discourage most potential thieves from committing, or attempting to commit, the crime of larceny.

With reference to the term "shoplifting," in my opinion, it is unfortunate that such a term has acquired popular usage. These words tend to minimize the maliciousness of the crime and to put it into the category of minor or petty offenses. But nothing could be less true.

Stealing the personal property of another person is larceny; and the mere fact that the stealing takes place in a store or business establishment does not change the offense in any way. If a person steals the property of another, he is a thief and has committed larceny, a felonious act, and a high crime in Pennsylvania.

Monroe County is proud of its many and varied, excellent, thriving business establishments. The responsible citizens who have invested their money in these businesses have contributed much to our comfort, convenience and well being. All citizens of this county should be ever alert, as they avail themselves of the facilities and products provided in the business houses of our neighbors, to report the commission of thefts.

The district attorney's office condemns this preying on the goods, wares and merchandise of our fellow citizens as a particularly odious and offensive practice. We urge the cooperation of every law-abiding citizen in wiping out all larceny in our county.

Bangor School Board Elects E.C. Wallwork As Director To Succeed William Winkler

Bangor—E. Cornell Wallwork, N. Fifth St., a Republican, was named a school director by the borough school board last night.

He replaces, and will fill out the four-year term of, William Winkler, board member who resigned officially last night.

Winkler's resignation was submitted in a letter to board. It had been unofficially announced at last month's meeting by another director.

Four board members—Merle Mabius, president; David Stoddard, Quintus LaBar and Phillips Keenan—voted for Wallwork. Mabius ruled that since a majority was in favor no other ballots would be needed.

Two board members—Nicholas Casario and Marvin DePamphilis—did not vote on the issue as a result of the ruling.

Casario expressed a belief that the public should have been given more time following the official resignation before a replacement was named.

The board member said he thought 30 days should be allowed following submission and acceptance of an official resignation. Mabius ruled, however, that the unofficial notification of Winkler's impending resignation at the February meeting had given the desired 30 days notice.

Two other applicants were noted by the board. They were Ralph W. Hess and Bryden O. Strunk.

The board's property committee was ordered to study the cost and advisability of erecting an addition to the present Bangor High School building. The addition would house a gymnasium and basketball court.

The education committee was asked to study salary schedules proposed by the local chapter of the Pennsylvania State Education Association. These increases were outlined in a letter from Armon Williams, president of the Bangor PSEA. Mabius read the letter to the board.

In a report to the board membership, the education committee recommended that three teachers in the school system be employed as "temporary professional" employees effective this school year.

The teachers are Mrs. John Brumbach, Mrs. Elmer Sayre and Miss Jeanette M. Haney. All three have been working as substitute teachers since the beginning of this school year.

Salary recommendations were made as follows: Mrs. Brumbach—$3,100; Mrs. Sayre—$3,000; Miss Haney—$2,700.

If employed under the committee's recommendation, the three teachers would be eligible for the $200 increment during the 1955-56 school year.

The school board approved the new marking periods for report

Prof. Nirmal Chatterjee Addresses Kiwanis Club On 'Independent India'

Prof. Nirmal Chatterjee, professor of education at Vijnan-Bharati University, India, spoke on "Independent India" at the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club meeting yesterday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

At present, Prof. Chatterjee is studying student education at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College under the Fulbright scholarship program.

Introduced by Eugene H. Martin, dean of men at the college, Prof. Chatterjee declared the independence of India is one of the greatest events in history and means much to all the nations of the world.

The speaker deplored world wars, but said that value in them, in that representatives of the nations involved have been able to understand each other better.

The United States was commended by the speaker for its contribution to advances made in India where 70 per cent of the population is engaged in agriculture. Notwithstanding a lack in mechanical transportation, creditable advances have been and are being made in industrial and in economic conditions, he said.

There is a central government, Prof. Chatterjee said, but the nine major states and 80 or 90 minor states operate independently.

Great stress is being placed on education, he said, with a great need for teachers, not necessarily those specially trained for the work, but those who could be real leaders of the people. Each state, it was pointed out, forms its own educational program, with the central government acting in the advisory capacity.

The speaker was loud in his praise of the Fulbright plan providing for exchange of students of various nations and increasing better understanding between nations. India, he said, is one-third the size of the United States, but has double the population, which is one of the big problems faced.

Stress is being placed on creating a higher standard of living, the speaker said. While there are many dialects in the Indian language, emphasis is placed on English.

Dr. C. W. Dupee, president, welcomed George T. Robinson back from a vacation in Bermuda and Jerome Elwell, who had been ill. Elwood Hinz, inter-club committee chairman, announced a delegation of the Stroudsburg club will visit the Port-town Club Tuesday, March 9, leaving the Penn-Stroud Hotel at 4 p.m. Last Thursday night a delegation of five local members put on an inter-club meet at the Bangor club.

Sellersville club will hold an inter-divisional ladies' night Thursday, March 11, at which Stroudsburg will be represented. District Governor Sam Wagner, of Erie, will make an official visit on that occasion.

Guests welcomed by President Dupee were Clay Richmond, of New York City, and Lionel Heath, of Long Island, N. Y.

Dr. Earl Willhoite conducted the song period with Numa J. Snyder at the piano.

Traffic Death Mark Repeated

Chicago (AP) The nation's recent traffic death history is being repeated.

The National Safety Council yesterday reported there were 2,900 motor vehicle fatalities in January—the same number as in January, 1953.

The council said the toll was reduced 14 per cent in cities in January, but the reduction was offset by a rise in fatal accidents in rural areas.

The cow, camel, yak, water buffalo, ewe, goat and reindeer all furnish milk for human beings.

All Residents 21 And Older Subject To Tax

Several mistaken notions about assessments are making the rounds of the county, Chief Assessor George L. Smith said yesterday.

Some people believe they should be removed from the assessment rolls when they reach the age of 65.

Others believe they should be off the rolls if they are retired.

Still others think veterans are entitled to exemption from taxation.

These are the facts, as given by Smith:

Anyone who is 21 or older is required to be listed on the assessment rolls.

Veterans are not exempt from taxes in Pennsylvania.

A person may be freed from tax payment at any age if he proves he is indigent. To do this, he must first present evidence to either the local tax collector or Chief Assessor Smith. Then he must await a ruling by the county commissioners.

Red Cross Provides Help To Fire-Stricken Families Through Disaster Committee

There were no major disasters in Monroe County during the past year. However, there were four fires which loomed as major ones to the families who lost their homes and contents, and there the Monroe County chapter of the Red Cross stood ready to help.

The disaster committee, of which Russell Harmon is chairman, went into action as soon as the need was known. The things needed at once by the families were purchased. Items needed for refurbishing new homes were contributed by the people of Monroe County, always quick to answer any appeal from the Red Cross.

Mr. Harmon also represented the Red Cross on the Civil Defense planning group to coordinate disaster functions in this county.

The local Red Cross was also able, through the contributions to its 1953 campaign, to answer the appeal of the National Red Cross for the tornadoes which struck the nation last year, without need of any special appeal for funds in the county.

Rehabilitation of the stricken is the unique function of the Red Cross in time of disaster. Many other organizations and government agencies join hands with the Red Cross to help with evacuation, rescue, shelter and feeding.

However, the Red Cross remains on the job after the calamity to give assistance to individuals and families in rebuilding their homes and lives.

Aid given through the Red Cross does not duplicate government assistance, which is directed to the restoration of community facilities and public services. All members of all chapters of Red Cross have a hand in aiding disaster sufferers.

Last year the Red Cross helped 24,500 families in more than 300 disaster operations in this county and expended almost $6,800,000 in disaster preparedness and relief. Assistance given through the Red Cross to those in need is an outright gift of the American people.

Wyckoff's Show New Frigidaire Colored Refrigerators

A brilliant new line of household refrigerators and electric ranges with exteriors finished in full color as well as conventional white, was announced by A. B. Wyckoff, Frigidaire dealer in this locality.

The new colored products are being mass-produced in two distinctive pastel shades—rich Stratford yellow and cool Sherwood green. The colored refrigerators have matching interiors and the white models also have new full-color styling inside.

New 1954 Frigidaire appliances will be shown for the first time in this locality in the showrooms of A. B. Wyckoff, 564 Main St.

Mr. Albert, who previewed the glamorous new household products recently during a special meeting in Philadelphia, said that Frigidaire factory officials reported three significant trends affecting the design of refrigerators today.

1. We obviously are moving into a new era of colorful living. Color-conscious Americans are buying bright automobiles and clothes, and there is a growing demand for more color in kitchens, dictated in part by modern home design.

2. Modern living has created a demand for refrigerators of larger capacity. In answer, Frigidaire has included 13 and 15-cubic-foot food freezer-refrigerator combinations in its new line. The latter is particularly striking in appearance, with two full-length vertical doors.

3. Finally, homemakers are demanding more and more food storage convenience. Frigidaire has developed a number of new features for 1954 which virtually place the refrigerator's contents at the homemakers' fingertips.

In describing Frigidaire's use of color, Mr. Albert said that Cyclamatic food freezer-refrigerator combinations are produced with colored cabinets in three sizes, including models with storage capacities of 8.4, 10.3 and 13 cubic feet. These new models with pastel cabinets are available with either Du-lux or porcelain finish.

Four porcelain-finished ranges, including three top Imperial models and a 30-inch range, have colored exteriors, which match the refrigerators.

A great deal of research and study went into developing pastels which would harmonize with a wide variety of overall color schemes. Home decorating problems were carefully analyzed, and even the psychological aspects of color were considered.

Color is used extensively to glamorize the interiors of all new Frigidaire refrigerators. Stratford yellow and Sherwood green models have matching colors inside. Those with white cabinets have food storage compartments finished in an unusual pastel shade. Under

Odorless Paint Used Extensively

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER,
AP Real Estate Editor

How to use odorless paint and what to expect of it are things the home handyman ought to know about this now widely advertised product.

First, it works like any other kind of paint and the biggest manufacturers are now making it in virtually all types—flat, gloss, enamel, or what have you.

It is a superior kind of paint being extensively used for hospitals, hotel rooms, hair dressing parlors and other places where quick redecorating jobs are necessary.

Therefore it may appeal to you, especially if the missus wants that kitchen or living room freshly painted next weekend to get ready for a ladies' aid meeting on Monday.

There are five things to bear in mind when you use this new invention:

One—Use only the recommended odorless thinner if you must dilute the paint. No turps or mineral spirits. Otherwise you'll stir up as bad a stink as with any paint. Even less than 3 per cent contamination with the regular smelly thinners will give you that old-fashioned paint smell.

Two—Stir the thinner into the paint about twice as long as you would stir turpentine. Odorless thinner mixes much more slowly.

Three—It is better to clean your brushes outdoors in one of the old-style solvents to save time. Either turps or spirits work faster.

Four—Ventilate thoroughly while painting, if you want to avoid a cheap drunk that will drive you out for fresh air.

Five—Don't expect odorless paint to remain odorless after it is on the wall. It develops a certain amount of smell of its own while it is drying—not that of turpentine or mineral spirits—but nevertheless a little smell.

Questions And Answers

Bright yellow tiling in our bathroom is so strong in color we would like to tone it down by using a wallpaper on the walls now painted pale orchid. What kind of paper should we use? Shower and window curtains are black and the floor is a mottled beige.

F. D. G.

A wallpaper with a pattern in pale yellow and black on a gray background, with woodwork and ceiling painted gray, will probably accomplish the desired toning down of the yellow tile.

Our living room has a beige rug, light green walls and woodwork, two brown lounge chairs, a brown and green sofa and blond tables and bookcase. What would you advise for draperies and lamps? I would like a modern nubby fabric for the draperies, preferably a solid color.

M. R.

I suggest a nubby fabric in pink for the draperies and dark green and yellow lamps.

I plan to redecorate a 12x12-foot bedroom. Three of the walls have two doors each and the other wall, a long window in the corner. The woodwork is light gray. I would like some idea to make the ceiling seem lower and the walls not so cut up. Should I paint the walls the same color as the woodwork or use a wallpaper with a horizontal stripe? The rug is a two-tone blue, the furniture, blond mahogany. Also what would you suggest for draperies and bedspread?

K. B.

Painting the walls of your bedroom the same color as the woodwork will make them seem less cut up. To make the ceiling appear lower, paint it a dark rose and use draperies with a wide horizontal stripe in gray and rose. For the bedspread I suggest pale blue with gray trim.

A very sunny living room is papered in a dark brown, yellow, green and gold stripe. The woodwork is white and the furniture is

Redecorations Call For Free Use Of Color

Home owners will spend millions of dollars during the coming year to modernize existing homes.

Top priority will go to redecorating projects. This means increased use of color both for its own sake and to create specific effects.

By applying a few simple principles of color usage, the homemaker can change the proportions of an entire room, making walls seem to approach or recede through use of eye-catching colors like yellow, or cool colors like gray. Color can be employed to give cold, formal rooms a warm atmosphere, sunny ones a cool aspect.

High ceiling such as are found in many older houses will appear lower if painted in vivid shades. Low ceiling will seem less oppressive if painted the same color as the walls.

Today's preference for a free use of color impels the homemaker to enliven walls of an older house with dramatic new shades to use bold-patterned fabrics for draperies and upholstery; to build room schemes around colorful floors.

Color harmony is accomplished when two or more colors are combined so that when seen simultaneously they are pleasing to the eye.

Where To Use Warm, Cool Colors

Warm colors and cool colors should be applied to different parts of a home in order to have a pleasing variety.

Tints of yellow, peach and rose are "warm" colors. They will create a comfortable and mellow charm, well suited to rooms facing north and east.

Green and blue—nature's own colors—are "cool" colors. They will impart a cool, delightful quality to rooms facing south or west. Blue is appropriate for bedroom and dining-room because it invites relaxation. Its effect with gray is subtle and appealing and will create a room of quiet charm.

Removing Paper

Paper that has stuck to table tops and other varnished surfaces can be removed by softening it with olive oil and then rubbing it off gently. This will not damage the finished surface.

How To Use Hack Saw

When cutting material with a hack-saw, apply pressure on the forward stroke only. Release the pressure at the end of the stroke and pull the saw back.

Decorator Trick

Professional decorators sometimes add a little blue to the paint used on the walls opposite the window of a well-lighted room to counteract the effect of the yellow sunlight.

Wax Window Cords

Window cords will last longer if they are coated with wax or grease. This helps to reduce friction.

Plastic Makes It Easy To Have Knotty Pine

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

So you're bored with the "hospital look" of your kitchen? Every thing seems so snow white, shiny and sanitary, you can't bear it.

Well why not cover your cabinets in plastic veneer? More than two dozen designs are available in marble, wood grain and leather patterns to please the most discriminating home decorator. These are in roll form like wallpaper, and the plastic film is similar to transfers, although it is applied with adhesive.

The film is so authentic looking due to its photography of selected wood grains and other materials that it looks like the real thing—mahogany, walnut, pine, limed oak, leather, marble or whatever.

It is easy to apply. All you do is cut the large sheets of plastic film to size using a razor blade and a metal straight-edge. Dip each piece of film in warm water for a few seconds, removing paper backing. Then apply a slow-drying cement on the surface to be covered and position the plastic veneer to the cemented area.

The veneer may be adjusted with your hands. It is squeezed until it is smoothed and all excess cement is then removed. When cutting, measure it a little larger than necessary if corners are rounded, pressing it around the edges. It can be mitered if you like.

This material is supposed to cut easily, and cement readily. It may be applied to wood, metal, glass, plywood, masonry with equal success. It may cover fine furniture such as coffee tables, pianos, chests and should give a permanent fine surface finish. It is not brittle and should not chip.

Don't open a new can of paint before you read the directions thoroughly on the label. Once the can is opened and you stir the contents or pour the paint into another container, splashes or "runs" of the paint may obscure some of the printed information needed.

Gutter Cleaning Easy

A garden hose attached to a hot water tap is a good thing to use for clearing house gutters of snow and ice.

Brighten Garden

The minor bulbs, such as the crocuses, scillas and grape hyacinths, are fine colorful materials for the rock garden.

Wax For Concrete

Wax makes a good finish for concrete basement floors. If the concrete tends to be a little dusty, the wax will take care of that, too.

Paint For Stucco

Paint applied to a stucco surface produces a smooth film which does not hold dirt. Rain easily cleans the surface. The appearance is pleasing and beating rains have little effect on it.

NYC Appeals Young's Bid For Control

New York (AP)—The New York Central Railroad yesterday appealed to the Interstate Commerce Commission in an effort to stymie Robert R. Young's drive to seize control of the road.

The Central filed a 17-page petition with the ICC asking it to rule on whether recent maneuvers of the Young group have violated the Interstate Commerce Act.

Chief targets in the Central's counter-attack were Texas millionaires Clinton W. Murchison of Dallas, Sidney W. Richardson of Fort Worth and Cleveland, Ohio, industrialist Cyrus S. Eaton.

The Central asked the ICC to investigate the circumstances of the sale of 800,000 shares of stock, owned by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, to Murchison and Richardson last week.

It also asked the ICC to determine whether the Allegheny Corp., holding company of which Young is chairman, continued to control the C&O.

The Central also wanted to know more about the part played in the deal by Eaton, an old friend of Young's who succeeded him as C&O board chairman Jan. 19.

Young quit C&O to free himself for his present bid for control of Central, the nation's second biggest revenue-producing road.

The nub of the question on which the Central bore down is the ICC's past ban against interlocking directorates on the Central and C&O.

Luzerne County Site Chosen For New State Institution For Defective Delinquents

Harrisburg (AP)—Construction of a new institution for defective delinquents will enable Pennsylvania to fund out its long-term prison reorganization program, the commonwealth's top prison official said yesterday.

"We can now go ahead with plans for converting our present Huntingdon institution into a penitentiary once more," said Arthur T. Prasse, state commissioner of correction.

The General State Authority, which finances most large-scale, commonwealth building projects, announced yesterday it will acquire a site in Luzerne County for a new building to supplant the present Pennsylvania Institution for Defective Delinquents at Huntingdon.

The Huntingdon structure was intended to be a penitentiary but never has been used for that purpose.

Prasse said there are about 770 inmates at Huntingdon. They would be removed to the Luzerne County structure.

Room can be found for about 1,000 prisoners when Huntingdon becomes a maximum and medium security penitentiary, as the plans call for, he said.

When that is accomplished, Prasse added, Huntingdon will be on a par with the Eastern and Western State Penitentiaries at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

The commissioner said the prison population at both these institutions will be reduced to about 500 from the present total of more than 900 inmates.

Both will continue as classification and diagnostic centers, to which all prisoners will be taken to determine where they can most usefully serve their terms.

Rockview Penitentiary, Centre County, will be used primarily as a minimum security prison and Graterford in Montgomery County, as both medium and minimum.

The reorganization program is an outgrowth of an investigation of prison riots last year and legislative action in 1953 which transferred all penal institutions from the Welfare to the Justice Department.

Acquisition of the site and construction of the new institution for defective delinquents in Luzerne County is expected to cost about 10 million dollars.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

You know very well that all social affairs didn't stop yesterday morning at dawn just like that, because it was Ash Wednesday. But it did seem that way as the flood of stories which has deluged the social desk suddenly turned into a mere trickle.

Of course, nobody wanted to go out in yesterday's cold, wet weather anyway, unless it was to a very special meeting in a very dry and cozy place. Which, fortunately, mine was.

Somehow both towns seemed deserted, and your car splashing its way through the streaming streets reminded you of those ghost stories where storm-battered travelers come upon haunted houses.

However, if the house I went to was haunted, it was by very pleasant spirits. Echoes of the Emperor's new clothes, speculation about flying saucers in general and ours in particular, Lenten diets and the Red Cross campaign.

New hair-cuts and costumes for the coming play, vacation trips and how to dye slip-covers, what to do with Brownie troops on rainy days and Summer jobs for teen-agers.

As I said, it was all very cozy and a perfect way to spend a rainy day.

Tea, Dinner Planned For Mrs. Dixon

The Monroe Council of Republican Women will hold its regular afternoon meeting on Wednesday, March 10, at 2:15 at the Penn-Stroud Hotel and will also hold a dinner that same day in honor of Mrs. Gaynelle Dixon, Republican candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs for Pennsylvania, approved by the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women.

Mrs. Dixon will meet the local council members socially at the afternoon tea which will follow a sale of handmade articles featuring elephants with Mrs. Olaf Pedersen as auctioneer. Among the articles to be auctioned off will be a cake baked by Mrs. Arthur George from the recipe which won for her a prize in a recent national baking contest.

Mrs. Dixon will be introduced by Mrs. John Shotwell. Mrs. Floyd Bachman and Mrs. J. Russell Custard will be co-chairmen of the reception committee and Mrs. Paul Lloyd is in charge of decorations for the tea, assisted by Mrs. Walter Stanard and Mrs. William Gorman.

Tickets for the dinner at 6:30 are now on sale and must be purchased by March 7 from Mrs. L. B. Kiffin, president of the Monroe Council. Mrs. Theodore Hsu will sing "The Star Spangled Banner" before the dinner at which Mrs. Dixon will be the main speaker.

Mrs. Dixon, a native of Butler, is a former vice president of the Bucks County Republican Committee and has served for years on the board of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women. She is now serving her third term as president of the Pennsylvania Council.

In 1952 she was delegate at large to the National Republican Convention, and during her administration arranged for the purchase and financing of the Council Clubhouse in Harrisburg.

A housewife, Mrs. Dixon has had business experience, and a wide community service. She is a member of the Woman's City Club of Pittsburgh; and for 15 years has been on the Nursing School Committee of the Butler County Memorial Hospital. She was co-chairman of the residential division of the three billion dollar hospital campaign fund. In 1939 she was appointed by Gov. Arthur James to the board of trustees of the Pennsylvania Trade School at Morgantown and has served as secretary of the board.

All council members are invited to attend both meetings and to bring their friends. Mrs. Dixon has been endorsed for the highest political post ever scheduled for a woman on the Republican state platform.

Hippos And Two-Tone Tongue Add Color To Christmas For Local Girl In Africa

Tannersville—News of Christmas entertainment coming at the beginning of the Lenten season may seem a bit belated, but local friends have recently heard about Miss Barbara Hartman's third Christmas in the Congo, where she is stationed as pharmacist in the mission hospital.

The annual Christmas pageant, there as here, was the highlight of the Christmas season, though choral reading sounds a bit different in the Otetela language.

"It was very effective," she wrote, "Our Otetela language lends itself very well to the choral reading, since it is what is called a 'Two-tone' language. It was especially helpful in making our pageant more worshipful."

"Another innovation which proved very successful was the printed program. The programs contained not only the sequence of scenes in the pageant, but all the names of all the students who had any part in the production from actors, speakers and curtain-pullers, to clean-up committee and members of the choir. I'm not sure who were the most pleased with it, the young people whose names were on the printed page, or the parents and friends who read the program over and over both during and after the pageant."

Another part of the celebration which she enjoyed was the visit to neighboring villages before Christmas with a truckload of little girls from the Girls Home. They presented the Christmas story in slides, music and Bible readings. Their entertainment proved so successful that in one village, they gave it all over again before they left.

Miss Hartman had some personal adventures during the holidays, too, when she spent a day at Tunda station, and later visited Lake Makamba where they rested, ate and swam for six days.

"One day we went up the Lomami River in an African dug-out, and watched the hippos on the opposite side playing in the water," she wrote. "I took some pictures but, though they seemed awfully close when they opened their mouths, they look more like black dots on the picture. I really enjoyed paddling around in the little flat-bottomed canoe-like boat. We had grand hiking weather early in the morning and just as fine swimming weather in the day."

Work has again resumed at the mission station, she said. At the hospital they are preparing to take in a new class of Aid nurses and preparing the present class to take their state exams.

If several members of your family take their lunch along, try having bottled sandwich spread on hand. The spread is usually a mixture of mayonnaise, pickle relish and sweet red peppers. It's good to use with sandwiches of ham, sardines or hard-cooked eggs.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Hearts have stopped pounding, pulse beats are back to normal and the nervous systems are slowly improving from their near breakdown stage, following Tuesday night's thrilling 66-65 East Stroudsburg basketball victory over Stroudsburg. There may have been better played games, but I feel safe in saying that the Stroudsburgs have never witnessed one court struggle with so much excitement locked within its 32 minutes of actual combat. Never has a finish left fans and players so limp as did the closing rush by the Cavaliers.

The initial contest held this season, in which Stroudsburg emerged a 69-66 winner, was an exciting encounter, one that everyone thought wouldn't be touched for a long time. But, from this reporter's vantage point Tuesday's encounter was much more thrilling than the first 1954 basketball clash between the neighboring rivals. The initial contest was dull through the third period, when East Stroudsburg found it almost impossible to score. But, from the second quarter on, the second encounter was nip and tuck, with the game tied eight times and the lead changing hands on an even dozen occasions.

True, East Stroudsburg constructed an 18-8 lead in the opening round on Tuesday, but it was evident that the Mountaineers were having trouble getting started and would be in the thick of the fight before many more moments ticked off the clock. Three points in 30 seconds by Dick Little gave the Stroudsburg club the spark it needed, as the Mountaineers returned to the fight and led briefly late in the second round and then took turns holding the upper hand throughout the second half. Tuesday's encounter was one of those games that had both rooting sections on the edge of their seats from start to finish.

Two things occurred during the course of East Stroudsburg's 66-65 win that will live in this scriber's memory for many years—maybe forever. The instances involved players of both teams. In the first meeting of the Mountaineers and Cavaliers this season, Captain Joe Chase and Bill Penzell received the bulk of verbal abuse for the East Stroudsburg loss. Chase had scored 10 points in the first half of the initial meeting, but was stopped cold on one point in the second half. In the same game Penzell came up with 13 tallies in the first two periods, but was credited with only two points in the second half, as he made only two of 11 foul shots in the third and fourth quarters. But, it was a different story on Tuesday, as both kids vindicated themselves with plenty to spare.

Penzell, the lanky sharpshooter who directed the wild two-handed shot into the cords just before the final whistle, finished the game with 22 points, 14 in the opening half and eight through the third and fourth periods. The Portland eager, just in a matter of contrast, made good on six of nine foul shots in the second quarter and eight of 15 in the game. Most of Penzell's foul shooting came on "one-and-one" setups. He was held to a single point in the third period, but came back with seven big counters during the last eight minutes of play.

Chase, recently recovered from two seriously injured ankles, came through when the chips were down on Tuesday, just as he did in the most recent Thanksgiving Day football game. Joe, playing his final contest, shot on a left hander from underneath and "zip-ped" a shot from the corner in the first period. The lanky senior worked through the entire second and third quarters without scoring a point, or without drawing a single foul shot. But, Joe broke loose for nine markers in the last eight minutes.

The other incident mentioned above occurred in the Stroudsburg dressing room. I was deeply impressed by the actions of the Stroudsburg seniors, the kids playing their final game, players who had lost their last two outings in the final seconds and youngsters who would never have another chance to regain lost prestige. The situation certainly must have looked black to these kids, but each in turn proved that he was a man, congratulating the opposition and at least two attempting to shoulder all blame for the loss.

It's easy to laugh and cheer in victory, but it's tough to take defeat. But, a kid that can take defeat in stride is the real athlete and rises heads and shoulders above those that can't. This scribe was also impressed by the rebounding ability of Don Herman, especially in the third quarter, and the shooting of Harold White. White was the younger star that caused the Mountaineers the least pre-game concern, but the three-letter athlete came up with 12 important points, mostly on long one-handed shots. The play of Dick Little was also refreshing, especially since Dick will be back again next season.

Little scored 16 points, mostly on rebounds, as the lanky Delaware Water Gap resident played the boards better than he has at any time this season.

Varsity 'S' Club To Sponsor Gold Medal Tournament

No Limit To Number Of Entries

Stroudsburg's Varsity "S" Club will run the annual Gold Medal Basketball Tournament this year and all games will be played on the Stroudsburg High court, it was announced last night by Warren "Mag" Loney, tournament director.

In the past the Gold Medal Tournament has been handled by the Monroe County YMCA, but at present the YMCA is unable to operate the basketball setup as in past years.

There is no limit on the number of teams allowed to take part in tournament play this year, although action will be for senior teams only. An entrance fee of eight dollars will be charged each team.

Entry blanks will be available at Loney's home, 1230 Hamilton St., beginning tomorrow. Deadline for entering the tournament is a week from tomorrow, at 4 p. m.

Each team will be limited to 10 players and only two members of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College varsity cage machine may play on any one team in the tournament. There is no age limit.

Three trophies and over 50 individual awards will be on the line in this year's tournament play.

A doubleheader will be held each scheduled night of action. Adults will be admitted for 25 cents, while students may pass through the doors for 10 cents.

In past years only the final game of the Gold Medal Tournament has been held on the Stroudsburg court.

Martin's departure does not leave the Yankees lacking a second baseman, however, for Manager "Casey" Stengel still has Jerry Coleman available for duty.

Coleman was the regular second baseman for the Yanks until he went into service early in the 1952 season, at which time Martin took over for him.

Program
The program calls for two ping pong matches, a volleyball game between the faculty and all-stars, a number by the Bangor High Majorettes, a wrestling demonstration by two East Stroudsburg State Teachers College students and a basketball game between the Bangor girls team and the Earth Runners. Two boys from Bangor will also wrestle two Pen Argyl High students.

Mims Gains Split Decision
Detroit (AP)—Holly Mims, a clever Washington, D. C. veteran, won a split decision over eager Moses Ward of Detroit, last night in a 10-round middleweight bout televised nationally from Detroit's Olympia Stadium.

Mims weighed 153, Ward 160. The decision was based by the crowd who held Ward as the sentimental favorite. The scoring was 94-88 for Ward by Judge Jack Asprey, 89-88 for Mims by Judge Molcolm House and 93-89 for Mims by Referee Johnny Weber.

No Knockdowns
There were no knockdowns. Ward was the aggressor through most of the bout which was fought before only 1,211 fans who braved the aftermath of a crippling two-day snowstorm. The gate brought $2,881.90.

Ward was making his second straight appearance before the nation's television fans. His first start ended in an eight-round knockout by Willie Troy.

Eastburg Athletic Association Discusses Football Tickets

Football tickets constituted the bulk of discussion at the East Stroudsburg High School Athletic Association meeting last night, held in the school building.

Although no definite action was taken, season tickets, for both students and adults, came in for the most discussion.

Tentative plans call for reserving a portion of Memorial Stadium for adults and possibly students. The possibility of a reserved seat season ticket, something new at East Stroudsburg High, was brought before the gathering.

A section between the 45 and 50 yard lines may be set aside for adult season ticket holders.

Current plans call for adult season ticket holders to pay one dollar for all home games next season, with the exception of the Stroudsburg contest on Thanksgiving Day. This game will draw $1.50 from adults. There will be a charge of 25 cents for handling season tickets. This means that if the Cavaliers play four home games next fall a season ticket will cost $4.75 for adults. There is a possibility that there will be five home games, as October 16 remains an open date on the schedule.

The ticket situation will be discussed further at future meetings. Possibility of numbering all seats in the stadium and the proposed permanent lighting system were other subjects discussed.

Lewis R. Hastie, faculty athletic manager, gave a financial report and other matters of finance were brought before the group.

Poconos Earn Verdict Over Belvidere

Belvidere—Stroudsburg's Poconos gained a firmer grip on second place in the Blue Mountain Basketball League last night with a 79-72 verdict over Belvidere, here on the latter's home court.

The Poconos actually won the game in the first half and then fought off a determined finish by the host team to wind up on the long end of the score by seven points.

Stroudsburg, featuring only six men, moved out in front at the end of the first quarter, 24-14, and held a 44-28 lead at the halfway mark. The Poconos enjoyed a 20-14 bulge in the scoring.

Belvidere came to life in the third and fourth quarters and forced the high ranking Poconos to the very limit before the outcome of the contest was officially decided. Belvidere held a 24-16 edge in the third round and a 20-19 advantage during the last 10 minutes of play.

Henry "Hank" Stetler led the Stroudsburg scorers with 29 points.

NIT Names BYU To Fill Garden Field

New York (AP)—The National Invitation basketball tournament came up with an old favorite, Brigham Young University, to complete its 12-team field yesterday.

At the same time the field for the other big post-season college tournament, the National Collegiate A.A., began to take a more definite shape as places were assigned to two more teams.

Brigham Young, chosen after a tie between Rice and Texas for the Southwest Conference championship had ruled out both of those teams, will make its first tournament start in Madison Square Garden against little St. Francis of Loretto, Pa., to open a tripleheader next Monday night.

The NIT gets under way with three games Saturday, pitting Wichita against Bowling Green, Dayton against Manhattan and Louisville against St. Francis of Brooklyn.

Wichita's appearance in the New York tournament was assured yesterday when the Missouri Valley Conference voted unanimously to name Oklahoma A&M as the conference's representative in the National Collegiate A.A. tournament.

In the quarter finals Monday, after the BYU-St. Francis, Pa. opener, second-seeded Western Kentucky will play the Wichita-Bowling Green winner and fourth-seeded Niagara will meet the Dayton-Manhattan winner. On Tuesday Duquesne the top-seeded team, will go in against the BYU-St. Francis winner and third-ranked Holy Cross will play the Louisville-St. Francis (Brooklyn) winner.

Three Giants Arrive

Ballantine Beer watches your belt-line

...with fewer calories than any other leading beer

It's the trend . . . practically all beers are lower in calories these days. There's no starch in any of them, and not more than a negligible trace of sugar.

Still, if you're counting up your calorie quota, it's comforting to know that laboratory tests show Ballantine has fewer calories than any other leading beer.

But Ballantine not only watches your belt-line. Ballantine Beer is brewed to the American taste as well as to the American figure.

Ballantine Beer is the product of 114 years of brewing experience. Brewed from nature's finest barley malt and hops, it has the same full flavor and fine character that have made it one of America's largest-selling beers.

Next time, ask the man for Ballantine—the low-calorie beer with the flavor that chill can't kill!

White Sox Feature Pitcher With 42 Victories; Philley, Westlake Rivals In Cleveland Camp

Tampa, Fla. (AP) — Who said baseball hasn't had a 40-game winner since Jack Chesbro in 1904? The Chicago White Sox have a rookie pitcher in camp who won 42 games since last spring.

Jack Harshman is the name. The 26-year-old lefthander won 23 at Nashville in the regular season, adding four more in the Southern Association playoffs and then hopped to Puerto Rico to win 15 more with San Juan in the Winter League.

Does the name sound familiar? If you're a New York Giant fan, it should. For Harshman is the former first baseman who came up as a pitcher in the dog days of the '32 pennant race to start a game that brought the wolves howling around Leo Durocher.

Harshman, still slightly bruised from that sudden exposure to the big time, remembers the incident all too clearly.

"The Giants still were in the race, three games back of Brooklyn. The regular pitchers were all overworked, they told me, so Leo decided to gamble on me against Chicago.

"If I had won the game, Leo would have been the greatest manager who ever walked on two legs. He was gambling but he was smart. I don't blame him. That Hacker (Warren Hacker) would pick that day to throw a three-hit shutout. After the game they really fried Leo in oil for taking a chance on me with the club still in the race."

Tucson, Ariz. — Newcomer Dave Philley, a right field regular for the Cleveland Indians? Wally Westlake has something to say about that.

The 32-year-old Westlake, a .330 hitter last year, said "A check of the day-to-day records will show I hit pretty consistently. If I hadn't, Manager Al Lopez wouldn't have left me in there for 82 games."

Philley, obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics for whom he hit .303 last season, frequently has been mentioned as a leader candidate for the rightfield post.

Yuma, Ariz. — The Baltimore Orioles began to take shape as General Manager Art Ehlers announced his tardy pitcher, Don Larsen "hasn't made the team yet," then exchanged a few barbed comments with former owner Bill Veeck.

Ehlers issued his truculent remarks as Field Manager Jimmy Dykes picked a probable lineup for the first spring practice game at Mesa, Ariz., next Saturday.

Larsen, a 7-12 hurler for the St. Louis Browns last year, arrived at training camp and was not on the starting roster.

Veeck, who tried unsuccessfully to railroad the Browns into Baltimore last March, was here "to see some of my boys."

Asked why he had arranged a heavy exhibition schedule of 34 games in 37 days, Veeck snapped at critical remarks made earlier by Dykes and Ehlers who feel it entails too much traveling and doesn't leave enough time for practice.

New Search For Fiery Object Set

Snow Hill—Another attempt to learn what fiery object dropped to earth near here Feb. 23 will be launched this week-end by volunteer searchers.

Charles LaBar, caretaker for Easton Anglers Association, on whose property the burning object fell, will enplane at East Stroudsburg Airport at 8 a.m. with Hal Hamlen Sunday for another extensive search.

LaBar is convinced that this burning subject spotted about 8:10 p.m. by his wife, son Robert and himself holds some mystery and is reported determined to find some trace of evidence.

Shortly after the incident was noted Mrs. LaBar said smoldering embers dropped in the front yard at their home, as if wind-blown from the section where the object hit.

LaBar and son climbed the 60-foot fire tower on Dancing Ridge and watched the object burn, then die out. It was estimated the illumination continued 20 minutes after striking the ground.

Several attempts to locate the mysterious object have failed, but volunteers opine the dense woods and swampland possibly hold some secret.

Plane flights also failed to uncover any section which might show a trace of destruction where the object hit. State police of Milford called off their part in the search after a check of airports in the East showed no planes overdue on flights.

But for the second consecutive week-end, the group of volunteer woodsmen will seek out what the LaBars saw, with LaBar spotting from the air to assist ground parties.

Mount Pocono To Rebuild Barclay Ave.

Mount Pocono Borough Council has approved the rebuilding of Barclay Ave. from Route 611 to a point near Skyline Inn, it was reported yesterday.

Also discussed at the monthly meeting was possible purchase of Fairview Water Co. No action was taken, however. There have been a number of reports of bargaining between council and company officials in the past three months.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

OUT AHEAD with the highest-compression overhead valve engines for more power and finer performance on less gas. Here's the highest compression ratio of any leading low-priced car—7.5 to 1.

OUT AHEAD with that smooth and solid big-car ride. Chevrolet's the only low-priced car with Unitized Knee-Action—the entire front suspension assembled and balanced as a separate unit. That's one reason for its finer ride.

(Isn't this why more people want—and buy—Chevrolets than any other car?)
